

Mom's Newsletter

JUNE 2011 "ONCE A RAMBLER, LIKELY ALWAYS A RAMBLER" VOLUME 24, NUMBER 3

Aunt Lorraine Re-Connects with Old Beau

Score Another for Match.Com

(Gettysburg) "Oh, Abe is nice," whispered Lorraine Miller to favorite granddaughter Lori Beyl, "but I don't think I will go out with him again." Recently returned from an unescorted day trip, Lorraine arrived back to her bachelorette pad in southwest Faribault to prepare for another evening of overbooked social obligations.

"I have recently replaced my social secretary," sighed Lorraine as she elegantly moved a large pile of envelopes from a holding bin to her desk to review them. "Let's see, a wedding invitation from Prince William and Cate...pass. An invitation to Andy McGrory's graduation...didn't see that happening any time soon. Here is an invite to throw out the first ball at a Twins game....they suck." Lorraine then pulled out an embossed envelope and studied its content. She turned it over, pulled it close to her glazed eyes and reached for the phone. With a now-shaking hand she said, "Code Red. This is big Momma. Send a doctor immediately; I think I am having hallucinations." A few moments later, a crack squad of medical bodyguards came into her room and immediately placed her on oxygen and administered a small sedative to calm the feisty nonagenarian.

A few hours later, a spokesman issued a statement apologizing for sending her large fan of Twitter followers into hysterics. "We want to re-assure Lorraine's fans that she did not suffer a medical emergency but rather was reacting to an external stimulus, 'similar to when a person sees a flying saucer, something that causes their synapses to miss-fire due to its inability to process something once thought unthinkable."

When reached for comment, Little Billy Miller said, "I am sorry I shocked Grandma with the wedding invitation. Joanie should pick her up, bring her to the church and tell her it is the Pentecost supper."

Mom's Newsletter advice to the Graduates...

The Latest 'Lil News Bites:

- Our Little Billy Miller is getting married to the lovely Amy Nicole Abrahamson. "He said he has to get hitched to stay in the country," remarked the beauty. "This is just like The Proposal or Green Card."
- Michele Lenz-Noll continually amazes the scientists with her remarkable brownish head of hair. "I guess I got the 'no gray hair' gene from either my mother or Sue Meads."
- Jimmy Mylrea has heard a few Butterscotch Pudding rumors on the street. "If Karen Ayre is lying about pudding...watch out."
- Dean Lohrmann remains cute AND giggly.