UNCLE BING HEADLINES LAS VEGAS Midnight Idol Wows Them at The Mirage

(Las Vegas) It isn't the sellout crowds or throngs of adoring fans that is the big surprise at The Mirage; it's Uncle Bing's new act. A long time song and dance man, Bing has now introduced a comedy routine to rave reviews. The Newsletter dispatched their entertainment reporter to Las Vegas to review the act and the reporter sent back this message "He was great, I am moving to Vegas" and included these two opening act jokes:

"One of my friends, a ninety-year veteran, up and marries a twenty-one year showgirl. I say, 'Aren't you worried if you have sex with her, it could be fatal!' My friend thought about it a moment, shrugged his shoulders and said, 'Well, if she dies, she dies.' Thank you, thanks very much."

"Darling" says a husband coyly to his wife: 'let's swap positions tonight'. 'What a good idea" she replies, 'you stand in front of the ironing board, and I'll sit in front of the TV and fart.' Thank you, thank you very much."

"Oh, your mom called again."

MNL Correspondents Check-In

Cindi Ramm reports from the Louisville State Penitentiary:

"Hi y'all! Things are great down here and I just wanted to say hello to my fellow readers. As you know, the cell searches can be a bit trying and the cops (we call them 'screws') are always shaking us down for money and contraband. I have joined a social club, called the Lady Bloods and we get together regularly for social interaction and craft time. I am planning on making some zip guns for holiday presents!"

Nancy Weirick reports from Kenosha, Wisconsin:

Dear Nancy

"Greetings from Wisconsin! As some of your dedicated readers will notice, I have not been a regular contributor to the Newsletter. However, since I have just finished some very, very painful foot surgery (both feet), the editors have agreed to allow me to contribute a few war stories to the large group of nurses that read this rag as long as I am very graphic with the pain I am suffering. So, suffice it to say, my feet are in the freaking perioperative state."

Mike Dapper reports from St. Paul, Minnesota:

Gibby's Kid

"Well, I have two little girls that run me and my wife ragged twenty-fours a day and I am afraid that they will eventually meet up with some boys that remind me of me (and Tom Teske). In addition of staying up nights worrying about the 2014 prom, I have just completed filing a large lawsuit against the publishers of Mom's Newsletter regarding a few libelous statements made about me.

In a recent issue, the reporter intimated that I had some prior social knowledge about Joanie Miller's cousin. I do not personally know nor can you prove I met any niece of Bing or Lorraine Miller. I will see you cats in court."
